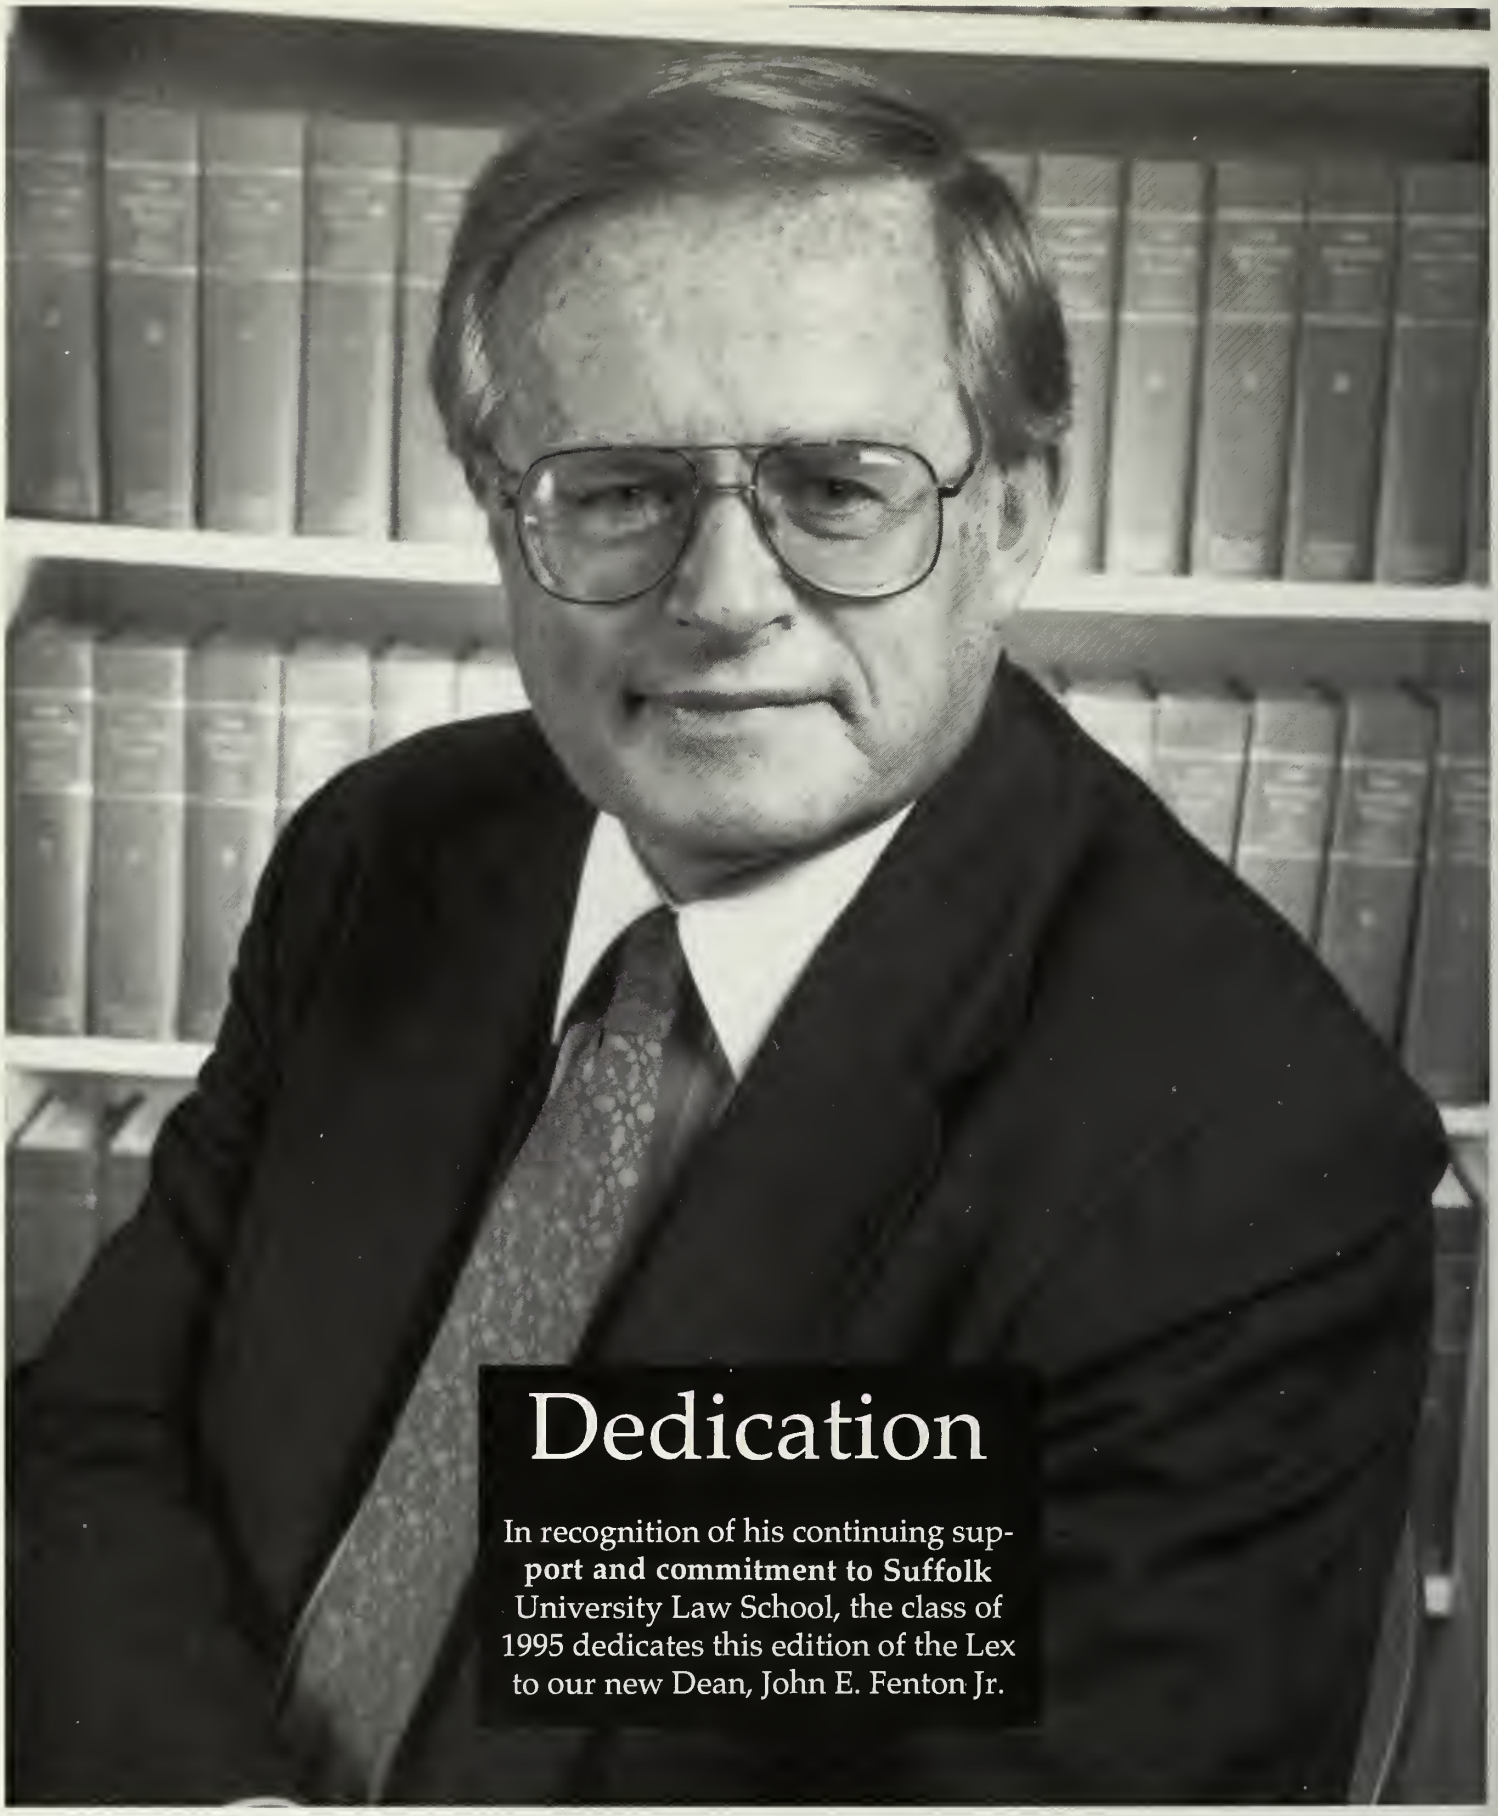
IN MEMORIAM

Professor Alexander J. Cella, '61, passed away on December 2, 1993. Professor Cella, a graduate of Harvard and Suffolk University Law School, was a true scholar and an admired teacher at Suffolk for the past twenty-two years. The author of a leading three volume treatise on Administrative Law, he taught Legislation and Administrative Law. Professor Cella served with dedication and distinction as the advisor to the Suffolk Unifersity Law Review.

John P. Chase, passed away on April 1, 1994. Mr. Chase served on the board of trustees from 1965 to 1994. A magna cum laude graduate of Harvard, he was the captain of the 1932 United States silver medal Olympic Hockey team. Mr. Chase was an investment counselor and a life trustee of Suffolk University.

Walter H. McLaughlin, '30, passed away on March 13, 1994. He served as an Associate Justice and Chief Justice of the Superior Court of Massachusetts. A longtime trustee of Suffolk University, Chief Justice McLaughlin also served as chair of the Law School Committee. The Walter H. McLaughlin Oral Advocacy Competition at the Law School is named in his honor.

Bruce Weinberg, passed away on Februrary 5, 1994. Bruce graduated from M.I.T. and was a member of the class of 1995 who started at Suffolk Law in the evening division in 1991. Bruce was an invaluable member of the Dicta staff in 1992 and 1993. He was "an incredibly bright individual who asked very penetrating questions." After both of his first two years, Bruce was ranked first in his class. Bruce was also a former president of the New England Regional Volleyball Association.



Dedication

In recognition of his continuing support and commitment to Suffolk University Law School, the class of 1995 dedicates this edition of the Lex to our new Dean, John E. Fenton Jr.

DEAN'S MESSAGE

To the Class of 1995:

It is with great pleasure that I commend and congratulate the Class of 1995 on behalf of the Associate Deans, faculty, administration and staff of Suffolk University Law School. This is a time in your lives to reflect on your accomplishments. It is a most rewarding time, not only for yourselves, but for those individuals who have helped you through your most trying and difficult obstacles. Accept the honor of earning the Juris Doctor degree that you have worked so diligently for, with the well-deserved admiration of your parents, spouses, children, relatives and friends. Feel proud of yourselves and your fellow classmates as you bring to an end one phase of life and begin another.

When you receive the Juris Doctor degree, you will be embarking on your legal career. Please keep in mind the devotion and efforts it took to reach this plateau and strive to continue giving this level of commitment in all your future endeavors. I believe Suffolk University Law School has given you the opportunity to study under a superb faculty, who has prepared you with a strong basic legal education. It is now your chance to go forth with this education, to continue to learn, and to become a valued member of the legal profession.

I hope all of you will look fondly back at your years at Suffolk University Law School. This was a time to embellish on friendships, as well as learning to grow intellectually, and to continuously challenge yourself beyond your own expectations. I am confident you will bring credit to this Law School, each in your own individual manner.

I extend my congratulations to the editors and staff of this year's edition of the 1995 Suffolk University Law School Yearbook for their excellent work. They are providing each member of the graduating class with a commemorative publication. Their commitment to this issue is very much appreciated and will be enjoyed for many years.

It is time to go forth as a class, an individual and an alumnus/ae of Suffolk University Law School. I hope all of you will be proud to be graduates of such a fine law school and I urge you to become active in the various activities of the Suffolk Law Alumni. Please keep in touch with your classmates and with all of us at the Law School.

I wish each member of the class good health, much happiness and continued success.

Very truly yours,

John E. Fenton, Jr.
Dean and Professor of Law

THE LAMENT OF THE LAW STUDENT

by
Lisa Marchionda

It's my first year in law school and I'm scared half to death -
My books are too heavy and I can't catch my breath.
Civil Procedure is hard; Torts is a real "gas,"
And I need an interpreter to attend Contracts class.
The LPS assignments make me scream, swear and shout -
I wonder many times if it's too late to drop out.
My house is all dusty; I never make my bed,
And if my roommate didn't feed her, my cat would be dead.

Second year is no picnic - U.C.C. makes me weep;
Oh when will I ever get eight hours of sleep?
I learned my lesson last year - the brutal pace I remember;
Now my Christmas shopping is done the first week in September.
Third year rolls around - I'm getting pretty hip;
I figured out which days I can regularly skip.
I no longer read cases or even attend class -
All I need is the outline and chances are that I'll pass!

At long last, graduation day has finally arrived;
For years it provided my will to survive.
But the bar exam must be taken before the battle is won;
Alas, no time this summer to bask in the sun.
And the job market these days doesn't hold too much hope;
If I weren't waiting tables, there's no way I could cope.
But in retrospect, the last few years were not a waste,
So now if you'll excuse me, I have an ambulance to chase!

Our World!

By Jen Kahsen, 3C

The thing about a yearbook is...well...it's like this book that's supposed to be about what happened over the course of the year. But the thing is that it's not really what happened; it's the idealized version about what we think should have happened. Because if you really had a book about what happened during the year...it would be a pretty disturbing book.

After being asked to write this article for the 1995 Yearbook, I decided that the best place to start would be to look at what authors in past yearbooks have done. The articles I reviewed were all retrospective, discussing world events that profoundly affected each class' law school experience. After completing my read, I closed the yearbook, and blinked up at the yearbook's Editor-in-Chief. "OK...so this is what I'm supposed to do?" I asked.

"Yeah," he replied. "Write about the world events that profoundly affected our experience here at Suffolk." "OK," I said. "What world events "profoundly" affected our time here?" I myself was unable to think of any. "Umm..." he started, "The O.J. trial...the bombing in Oklahoma...umm..." "Well," I retorted, "What you've just given me, albeit more than I could come up with, was one perfectly valid world event and one overly-hyped media event. Furthermore, they both happened during the past year. What about the other two years?" We were both at a loss. "Here's an idea, " he maintained. "Go to the library and look at an almanac."

I walked out of the SBA office and thought about this idea. Look up years in an almanac to find out which events profoundly affected our collective experience in law school. But, I pondered, if the events required research to remember, did they really affect our experience here at Suffolk so profoundly?

If the truth be known, the reason we weren't able to think of any "world events," is that, well, for many if not most of us, Suffolk was our world. I suspect very few of us picked up a paper on a regular basis, or watched the news as more than a study break. School, much to our chagrin, was all-consuming. Suffolk events were our world events. To write otherwise would be false and indeed misleading, so let's talk about the real events which profoundly affected our time here at Suffolk.

The first event was at the Ritz. Stood around, squinting at people's name tags which contained seemingly encrypted messages like "1B" and "1C." Filled with the amazement that these would be the people with whom we would spend the next three years. Sensed the amazement turn to concern when witnessing the number of people absorbed in vigorously shaking the hands of as many members of the administration as possible. Failed to reach the goal of the event: to meet fellow classmates and members of the administration. Spent two hours standing in a corner of the room, drinking champagne with my new roomie and one of her friends from college. Immediately went to the bookstore to pick up textbooks, hornbooks, and something called commercial outlines.

The first year composite. Decided that it was a cruel hazing ritual passed down by the Suffolk alumnae members of the faculty and administration who felt that if they had to endure the ordeal, then by golly so did we. Spent hours in the library studying. Hours during vacation. Watched family members and friends enjoy their Chanukah/Christmas/New Year's while studying. Ignored loved ones' attempts to pull us out of the abyss by explaining that in fact the entire test was worth one graded unit. It didn't matter. Contracts, Civil Procedure, Property, Torts. Dazed and confused, the four grueling subjects finally swam and merged in front of our eyes to form something called ConCivPropTort. Took the test. Passed the test. Learned that life goes on. Learned about the value of caffeine.

First year finals approached. Decided it would be a good idea to form study group with 2/3/4/5 other equally insane students. Pledged to spend the next 4/3/2 weeks together, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. After a few weeks, pledged to live rest of life as a hermit. Determined human brain capacity was far too underdeveloped to consume all this information. Or maybe only this particular brain. Took the test. Took the second, third, fourth and fifth test. Walked out of the Sawyer building after Constitutional law, kissed the ground, and pledged to outline consistently and continually throughout second year. Really. Meant it this time. Went to Faneuil Hall. No recollection of the rest of the night. On to summer vacation.

First day, second year already. Vacation? What vacation? Watched first years hurry to do their first assignments before class began. Told a few first years that their Criminal Law class was on the seventh floor. Shrugged and denied that we were ever that concerned about school. Managed to get books before class began. Late to class. Thought about changing careers. Thought about how much money was already invested in school. Couldn't see the light of the tunnel yet. Snuck out the back of class and went to the Red Hat. Wow...two more years of this.

Third year came and went. Never found the bookstore this year. Went to the classes where attendance was taken. Traded outlines like baseball cards. Couldn't remember how to do own outline. Finally saw light at the end of the tunnel. Hoped it wasn't a train. During the very last final, couldn't concentrate on the test. Kept thinking, "If I put my pen down now...I'll be done with finals forever." Resisted the urge and kept plugging away.

The morning after my last final, I squinted into the bright sunshine, feeling like Rip Van Winkle. Right before my eyes, a brand new world seemed to appear. There were things to do, places to go, people to see. Some wise lawyer told me several years ago that law school was like going underground for three years. To say otherwise would indeed be deceptive. The world of Suffolk Law School was in fact our world for three years, whether that is a slightly disturbing notion to some of us or not. Now is our time to experience the outside world and all its profound events. Godspeed Class of 1995.

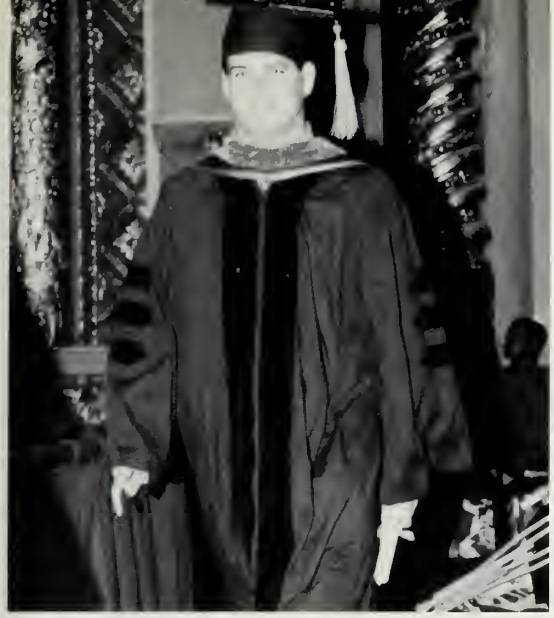
The Yearbook and Senior Week could not have occurred without the following people:

Jennifer Aliotta: One of the few willing volunteers.
Celeste Baker: A great box maker who disappeared after April.
Lorraine Cove (Registrar): An Angel! Could not have done it without her.
Alyssa Duffy: A great collator.
Ilene Dell'aqua: Tricked into doing yearbook stuff - but a very good sport.
Kathy Eliott: Hope she has forgiven me for almost losing her check.
Karen Fabrizuski: The photo submission master.
Mia Frabatta: Nice Job.
Gina Gaffney (Computer Resource Center): Will kill me once she realizes that I put that picture of her & Tom in.
Dan Greenwood: Had the most unique reason for wanting to help.
Sabrina Harmon: Will never be known for her cut-and-paste skills.
Stephen Hilt (Director of Budget & Administration): Has the patience of a Saint - needed it to deal with me & the 1994 editor.
Debbie Isles: A great eye! Kept my ego in check.
Tom Johnson: Should have bet me again this year - the Sox did finish ahead of the Yankees.
Lori Kalis (Secretary): Would not let me take her picture, but was a big help.
Jen Khasen: Most sarcastic member of the staff. Nice job on the article.
Lisa Marchionda: The best proofer & a hell of a singer to boot.
Tom Mullins: A great artist & a great person.
Gary Murad: The ultimate in laid back.
Tannaz Narafshan: My phone tag friend.
Judy Reiser: A lousy moving partner, but a great friend.
Lorraine Rossi: Where are my Ads!!!
Susan Saucier: Came on late, but was sorely appreciated.
Judy Scalle (Computer Resource Center): See you at Demoulas.
Tara Spann: A great picture taker.
Lura Taylor: Was more help than she realizes.
Monica York: Had tp put up with some pain in the _ _ _ Profs, but was persistent in getting her pictures taken.



Dear Classmates,

I swore that I would not become Yearbook Editor because I saw how much effort went into it and how little appreciation was given in return. However, when Budget and Administration Director Stephen Hilt told me that without me, there would not be a 1995 yearbook, I could not say no. 1 year later, I am glad to say that it is done and that I had something to do with it. I had help from many different people and I am eternally grateful to them all. Specifically, Thank You to Stephen Hilt, Lorraine Cove and the entire Registrar's Office, Lori Kalis, Gina Gaffney and Judy Scalle, McGrath Studios, John Carier, all the members of the Yearbook/Graduation Committe and those of my classmates brave and kind enough to risk their personal property by submitting photos for publication. I could not have done it without you!

The Yearbook Committee wanted to create a book that would represent our time at Suffolk Law. We think we have done just that and hope you feel the same. As Editor, I wanted my message to be reflective of our memories of Suffolk Law School. I also wanted to personally wish all of my classmates success in life, but how do you do that appropriately when we all measure success so differently. I'm not sure that I have the answer, but the following is as close as it gets for me.

SUCCESS

To laugh often and love much to win the respect and the affection of children; to earn the approbation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to give one's self; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition; to have played and laughed with enthusiasm and sung with exultation; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived - this is to have succeeded.
Ralph Waldo Emerson

I hope that all is well with you. I was very proud to be Editor of the 1995 Suffolk Law Yearbook and hope all of you look upon it fondly. Godspeed Class Of 1995.

Very truly yours,
Eric Schutzbank, 1995 Yearbook Editor-In-Chief
